

How to Play

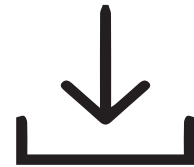

Prior to game, there should be three stacks of cards, labeled “Suspense,” “Character,” and “Plot Twist.”

All three decks should be kept separate and face down.

1. To begin the game, a player must volunteer to take the first turn as director. The director will be in charge of all three decks and acts as the dealer and judge.
2. From the Suspense and Character decks, the director will deal two of each card to the other players, face-up. (The director is excluded from playing the hand they deal.) Suspense cards include everything from weapons to locations or ideas for the pitch. Character cards include information such as background, plot involvement, or definitive traits of characters from Hitchcock films.
3. Players should all now have two Character cards and two Suspense cards. Players can choose to keep their full hand or else give up to two Suspense cards from their hand to other players in the game. These players cannot trade these cards and must accommodate these cards into their final story.
4. Going clockwise, every player will pitch a story that makes use of all the cards in their hand.
5. Now that the director has heard all the pitches, they will deal a Plot Twist card to their favorite movie pitch.
6. The player must now adapt their story to accommodate this plot twist. If the director likes how the player works in their plot twist, then the player is the winner of this round and gets to keep their hand, while the rest of the players’ cards must be “cut” in Hollywood fashion. If, however, the director does not like how the player works in the plot twist, the director will choose the next best initial pitch as the rounds winner.
7. The director role now shifts to the dealer’s right, and that player will assume all director responsibilities. This continues until every player has directed. Once every player has directed, the game is over. Every card is worth one point. Whoever has the most points at the end of the game is the winner.

How To Download and Play Hitch Pitch!

1. Download the Hitch Pitch PDF to your desktop.

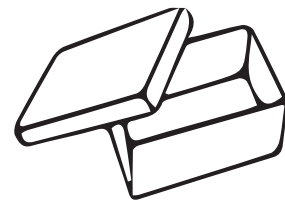

2. Print at home on any paper or take the PDF to the nearest print shop. For more durable cards heavy white card stock is the perfect fit.

3. Find a paper cutter or convince your friend to grab a pair of scissors. Cut the cards to size. A little edge goes a long way in terms of style.

4. A small accessory gift box is recommended for compact storage. These can be found at the Container Store or Hobby Lobby. Rubber bands for each deck also helps to keep the card decks separated.
